Union Hill Residents Meet with EPA To Continue Fight Against Atlantic Coast Pipeline Compressor Station

Buckingham County, VA—Members of Concern for the New Generation (CNG), a grassroots group from the Union Hill and Union Grove communities, will take a 6-hour drive to Philadelphia Thursday, Jan 12, 2017 to meet with representatives of the Environmental Protection Agency’s Region III . The group will request that the EPA step in to protect the people who live close to the proposed plant site.

Kathie Mosley, CNG’s co-chair, shared her reason for participating in the meeting, “One of the next steps in CNG’s efforts to stop the compressor station is to meet with EPA representatives and present our case, the very case the Buckingham County Board of Supervisors ignored.”

Sharon Ponton, an organizer with the Blue Ridge Environmental Defense League, who has been working with CNG stated, “We believe the Buckingham Board of Supervisors ignored its citizens, ignored its own ordinances and laws, and ignored evidence presented to them regarding issues surrounding environmental racism and injustice, and toxic air and noise pollution when it approved the Special Use Permit for the compressor station for the proposed ACP.”
